farm labor cannot be made without reliable statistics upon which to base the calculation; in the absence of these, therefore, we are only able to give an approximation, sufficiently near the true figures, to warrant the conclusion arrived at. The farmers of our county have depended mainly upon cotton as the money crop, and whatever prosperity has been attained was in proportion to the amount of that staple produced over and above expenses. A few, more progressive than others, have varied their crops sufficiently to supply their home demands for provisions, and are to-day more prosperous than their neighbors who have relied solely on cotton. The entire production of cotton for the county may be safely put down at thirty-five thousand bales, onehalf of which is sold in the county and the other half shipped to Charles-000, making a total of $800,000 made the basis of trade between our citi-

The cotton, one-half, sold at points an additional sum of $700,000, while the lumber trade of Beaufort and Charleston and other sources, returned at least $200,000 more, making a grand total of money values created in Orangeburg County of $1,700,000.

The amount of trade done in the town of Orangeburg will approach $800,000, that of other points will foot up an aggregate of $400,000 more, making a total of $1,200,000 worth of trade done by the merchants, and leaving $500,000 expended outeide the county. It will be seen that these estimates are low and within nor do they represent the full capacity of the county, yet an increase can and ought to be made equal to the amount of money spent beyond the limits of the coun y. If the entire gotton crop should be sold in the county, very nearly a million and a half of dollars would be put in circulation, and to that extent the trade of the towns of the county would be increased. The full value of the entire production of our citizens would be kept at home for the use of the county and to promote the prosperity certainly return more deeply infused of her citizens. Every dollar spent with the spirit of the Master and defrom home diminishes the circulation termined to labor more zealously in and that far hinders the prosperity of a field where so much may be done
